ELECTRIFICATION 101

As part of our Dare Forward 2030 strategy, Stellantis is committed to becoming the industry champion in the battle against climate change, reaching carbon net zero emissions by 2038.

Here's a look at what we are doing to reduce our carbon footprint:

- Offer more than 25 battery-electric vehicles (BEV) by 2030
- Reach a 50% passenger car and light-duty truck BEV sales mix in the U.S. by 2030
- Establish joint ventures to create battery plants and a charging network
- Seek out suppliers to offer sustainable parts and create new recycling opportunities
- Implement responsible use of natural resources

Efforts such as these allow Stellantis to create a clean, safe and affordable mobility future for all its customers, employees and community members from across the globe as well as our neighbors with whom we work and live. We're proud to say that the award-winning Jeep® Grand Cherokee 4xe, a plug-in hybrid electric vehicle that embodies the Jeep brand's electrified mission of Zero Emission Freedom, is built right here in Detroit at Mack Assembly.

Q3 AIR QUALITY UPDATE

The most recent Stellantis quarterly air monitoring data demonstrates that the air quality in the area continues to meet the standards for the analytes tested, according to the monitoring station on the Detroit Assembly Complex – Mack property. It meets National Ambient Air Quality Standards (NAAQS) for Particulate Matter smaller than 2.5 microns (PM2.5) and Nitrogen Dioxide (NO2).

Additionally, ambient air volatile organic compound (VOC) testing continues to show that no VOCs are present in the air at a concentration above, or even close to, their respective Michigan Air Toxics Screening Levels

MURAL'S SECOND PHASE COMES TO LIFE

Dr. Hubert Massey and his team of Detroit-based artists have been busy recently, working hard to create more stunning imagery that seems to leap off the surface of the sound barrier outside the Detroit Assembly Complex - Mack plant.

The second phase of the project is situated directly across from Southeastern High School, so it's no surprise that the educational landmark is well represented in the mural. Earlier this year, Dr. Massey sat down with Southeastern art students to get some inspiration for what they thought best represented their school and community. The end result is a majestic display of the school's mascot, the Jungaleers, proudly represented through a trio of ferocious roaring, purple-maned lions (see front cover).

Other iconic imagery includes the school's "3030" address on Fairview Street, the city's "313" area code, and an image of a Boblo Island boat and Sarah Elizabeth Ray. Ray was a local civil rights pioneer who was denied a seat on one of the ferries, and subsequently won her fight for integration before the U.S. Supreme Court.

"This is another opportunity to celebrate this great community on the east side," Dr. Massey, a Detroit resident, said about the mural's second phase.

The mural project is part of the Community Benefits Agreement (CBA) reached between Stellantis, the City of Detroit and the Neighborhood Advisory Committee.

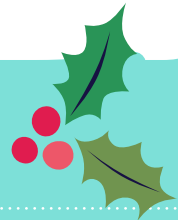

Partnering with Dr. Massey and Stellantis on the project are Commercial Contracting Corporation (CCC) and PPG, which are providing equipment and supplies.
